

DAY OF SORROW SOLEMNLY KEPT.

Impressive Good Friday Services in Many Churches.

STOCK EXCHANGES CLOSE.

Business Generally Suspended in Order That the Fast Day Might be Observed.

THRONGS AT THE CATHEDRAL.

The Crucifixion Vividly Represented at St. Francis Xavier and the Church of St. Mary the Virgin.

Good Friday was quite generally observed in all Christian churches yesterday. Even in commercial circles the anniversary of the Crucifixion was recognized. The exchanges and other centers of business were closed out of respect for the day. In England all mercantile houses and banks are closed and business generally suspended from Good Friday to Easter Monday, and the tendency toward a like condition is yearly growing in this country.

In the Catholic and Episcopal churches yesterday the services were particularly interesting and impressive. Other Christian churches, the American Volunteers and the Salvation Army solemnly observed the traditions of the day. In the Catholic churches there was no celebration of the mass nor consecration of the Host which had been consecrated on Maundy Thursday. The day was principally devoted to the representation of the Crucifixion, the priests kneeling before and kissing the crucifix in the morning, and the people expressing their adoration by kneeling before and kissing the crucifix in the afternoon. At the Cathedral, where the Bishop presided, the services were as usual on Good Friday. The attendance at the morning ing services was large and the Passion was impressively observed. At St. Michael's Episcopal Church, in West Ninety-ninth street, of which the Rev. John P. Peters is rector, there was a special Passion service at 5 o'clock in the morning, when Haydn's "Seven Last Words" was sung. The Rev. George Starkwater, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity, and the Rev. Charles Lewis Briggs assisted at the ceremonies.

Choral Service at South Church.
A chorus of thirty-five voices assisted the regular choir in the Good Friday services at the South Church, Madison avenue and Thirty-eighth street, yesterday. The Rev. Roderick Terry, D. D., officiated. The Agony Procession to Calvary and the Divine Humiliation were solemnized.

At the Church of St. Mary the Virgin, the High Episcopal Church, the services were similar to the Catholic rites. The Stations of the Cross were held in the morning, and the "Three Hours' Agony" was recited from 12 o'clock to 3.

At Grace Episcopal Church, the Gregorian Benedictus, Mendelssohn's offertory and Field's Gloria Tibi were sung at 11 o'clock in the morning. Services were also held in the afternoon.

At Trinity Church, the Church of the Ascension and the Church of the Transfiguration, otherwise known as the "Church of the Corner," the usual Good Friday services were held.

Services at St. Patrick's Cathedral commemorated the crucifixion and death of the Saviour. All day the church was crowded with members of the congregation passing in and out doing honor to the most solemn feast of the ecclesiastical year. The morning the mass of the pre-sanctified and the veneration of the cross. The Ten-brace was sung at 8 o'clock.

Good Friday services at the Paulist Church, Fifty-fifth street and Columbus avenue, St. Leo's Church, East Twenty-eighth street, and at the Dominican and other Catholic churches and institutions in this city were largely attended.

St. Francis Xavier's Church celebrated the ceremony known as the Three Hours' Agony. The ceremony was held between the noon hour and 3 o'clock, and was witnessed by hundreds of persons. At 8 o'clock the morning service began, consisting of the mass of the pre-sanctified and the veneration of the cross. The Ten-brace was sung at 8 o'clock.

Good Friday services at the Paulist Church, Fifty-fifth street and Columbus avenue, St. Leo's Church, East Twenty-eighth street, and at the Dominican and other Catholic churches and institutions in this city were largely attended.

METROPOLIS FLOWER MAD.

No Easter in the History of J. H. Small & Sons Has So Taxed the Florists.

"New York is flower mad," said C. Albert Small, of J. H. Small & Sons, florists, No. 1183 Broadway. "We have never had such a demand for flowers as Easter."

The firm has been compelled to open an annex at No. 218 Fifth avenue, where a large store room is filled with all the flowers of the Spring flower festival. A. W. Merritt is manager of the annex. He said:

"Easter being later this year than last flowers have come into the market better developed. They were never finer. Prices are about the same, but as the flowers have the advantage of the longer period to culture purchasers really get more for their money."

"The flower most in demand is the Japanese Lily, long bell-shaped, which is preferred to the Bormoda Lily because of its finer flower, longer and more beautiful leaves. The flower next in favor is the azalea, which is always in demand because of its color and value for decoration."

"There are many admirers of Scotch heather and the demand for all kinds of flowers is phenomenal."

GOLD IN EASTER BLOOMS.

Flowers for Greetings, Fleischman Says, Will Cost Residents of New York $200,000.

"The sale in New York of flowers for Easter will amount to more than $200,000," said Florist J. Fleischman. "Azaleas, anemones lilies and bulbous flowers, such as tulips, lily-of-the-valleys and lilies of the valley, are most sought."

"The demand for cut flowers and floral decorations has increased to wonderful proportions in the last five years. Many persons who, when in better circumstances, grew flowers in their private conservatories for pleasure, have since misfortune overtaken them embarked in the floral trade. Violets seem to be the hobby of these persons, because violets are particularly pleasing, least troublesome to grow and most profitable at market."

"The art of arranging flowers is a different matter, and not many venture to embark in the decorative floral trade, because of their lack of genius. Successful florists know that those who use flowers in abundance quickly weary of the mere beauty of the blossoms. Variety is not only the spice, it is the price of life in this business. At this season of great demand, the prices are necessarily high, for in no other business is the connection between demand and price so apparent. Sometimes there is such a glut in the flower market that it becomes necessary to sell surplus stock to street vendors. It often happens that 10,000 roses are sold in a day for $10, and twenty-four hours later, when the demand suddenly renews, that number would bring $1,000.

"It has often been proposed that the Legislature pass a law allowing storekeepers to exhibit their flowers upon one of the important public squares. The show at such a time as this would be marvellously beautiful. In Paris one of the most popular resorts of the women is the flower market at the Madeleine. If established here it would be one of the greatest agents of culture and refinement."

Easter enthusiasm fills the store life. The great Spring festival has a trade side. But trade has its festive side.

High-grade modern storekeeping catches both sides. Tradition links new clothes to Easter. Modern fashion makes clothes beautiful. Enterprise adds objects that are artistic or curious to the merchandise attractions. Thus the festival enthusiasm is created, and Wanamaker's becomes a public place of profit, convenience, beauty and enjoyment.

He that laughs last laughs best. It is a time for laughter here. Messrs. Wayback, Used-to-Be and Behind-Time shook their owly heads when we came here and foreordained our storekeeping a failure.

But now that Broadway hustles and bustles at Tenth street, that the Store aisles and all the floors are alive with the presence of interested visitors, it is plain:

First. That this is a natural centre.
Second. That people find something here worth coming for.

Do You Fear Strangulation?
Strangulated rupture is caused by wearing a poor fitting truss that does not properly stay in place, and which is the result in a good many cases, death. If you do not believe us ask your doctor. Do not wear the old style of truss with a heavy iron or steel band, something like the above, for you know what an instrument torture they are and what you have suffered with them. The only relief you will get is a proved Elastic Truss, worn with or without a band, day, thereby effecting a cure and permanent cure. No more pain, no more sore around your body.
